The European Union in Global Governance, (IIP, I; PFA, II; FW, I) Aukje van Loon Do, 14-16 Uhr
Beschreibung
Over the past decade, interest in the European Union (EU) and its role in global governance has steadily increased. However, the ability of EU member states and the European Commission to formulate and implement goals remains controversial due to their inability to achieve a coordinated position in international politics. The EU is an important player in international institutions and forums, and its relations with external partners have increasingly important implications at the international level for economic, political, and security concerns. Trade negotiations, military interventions, democracy promotion and international development, and responses to the global economic crisis have demonstrated that it plays a central role. Focus of this seminar is on the EU as an international actor and its role, as well as its challenges and perspectives, within global governance. It will focus on the positions of the Commission and individual EU member states/governments vis-à-vis partners, as well as on the implementation of specific EU foreign policies, e.g. in the areas of trade, development, security and defence, support to multilateral institutions as well as regional approaches. Participants will examine these specific positions and foreign policies and be able to explain EU foreign policy behaviour and decision-making by applying IB theories (neorealism, institutionalism, liberalism, societal approach).
