US Foreign Policy in the Changing Global Order: Power, Ideas and Interests (IntBez, Teil II)
Di 10:00 -12:00
Inna Andreeva, M.A
Beschreibung
Albeit the United States continues to play a distinctive role in contemporary international politics, the recent decades were a time of significant challenges to the US foreign policy. The rise of the emerging powers that increasingly questioned the existing order, required a redefinition of relations with Russia, China and other BRICS members. The ties with established partners, the European Union and North American countries, were as well in flux (TTIP, NAFTA). Global issues, such as climate governance (Paris agreement), nuclear non-proliferation (Iran nuclear deal), fight against terrorism (ISIS in Syria) were characterized by swinging rates of involvement of the United States. During the administrations of Obama, Trump and Biden, the US foreign policy underwent remarkable fluctuations from a multilateral vector to more nation-centered policies and, in some areas, back. How substantial were the fluctuations in the US foreign policy and what explains them? How and why did the US respond to the above-mentioned challenges? What factors have influenced the US foreign policy? During the seminar, participants will have the opportunity to (1) examine the dynamics of the US foreign policy in the recent decades (2) explore the theories of International Relations (IR) that focus on power-based (neorealism) and domestic politics (liberalism, societal approach) explanations, and (3) apply the theoretical knowledge to specific empirical case-studies on the US foreign policy.
